baucusr , web290 final project proposal

Squeakbeeps.   That is the theme of my webpage.   It is a made up word that refers to furry cute creatures that i know (pets of mine and neighborhood pets), as well as crocheted creations and purely imaginary creatures that have been antrhopomorphized into a cohesive pantheon. Each has their own story and invented personality as well as mythos to it. The page would largely consist of a main page, and 3 subpages with picutres and discriptions of the various squeakbeeps that have been invented and named over time.

The website main page would have a large banner done in photoshop, "Squeakbeeps" and a rotating carousel showing various photos of different squeakbeeps and a directory to the subpages that further divide the squeakbeeps by type.

    The QuickBreads,   i.e. my girlfriends cats, with a subsection dedicated to other family pets as well as the Mookatz (some alley cats that live behind my house)

    The crocheted creatures, consisting of all the crocheted creations and their back stories etc.

    and then the "sqrt(-1)", or Imaginary Squeakbeeps , which have never taken physical form, but occupy a space in our thought just as much as any other.

    -One of the pages would have a scroll box, perhaps the main pages of assorted pictures of squeakbeeps that would navigate to its corresponding subpage.

    -I am not sure how I would work out a form, perhaps to let the user vote on their favorite one.

    - the pages would have several unordered lists, to enumerate all the creatures.

    - an outside link to somewhere (TBD)